DEDICATION

The senior class of 1982 is proud to dedicate this book to Mr. John Dwight Ingram. Throughout our years at North Shore, "Daddy Jack," as he is affectionately known, has been a constant and reassuring presence. Whether we see him in class, quietly reading the paper on the lawn, or cheering for North Shore during a sporting event, his aura exemplifies an admirable dedication to North Shore and its students.

WORKDAY '81

On a windy day in October, North Shore students, armed with rakes and trowels, commenced the traditional workday routine.

Older students "collected" their partners from the lower grades for lunch on the lawn. All, then, dispersed to perform their assigned tasks which ranged from the planting of bulbs to reorganizing the Upper School English office. Students lugging leaf-filled trash bags signalled the end of the work and the beginning of the festivities. The eleventh and fifth grades boldly flouted North Shore tradition by opting for "Yuk, yuk, Moose" rather than "Duck, duck, goose". The day ended with ice cream (of course) and the announcement of the winners of the FIRST "Cleanest Area Award". Who won? The seniors and the Kindergarten. Have we witnessed the initiation of a new North Shore tradition?

STORY OF THE PLAY: At the time of a paralyzing drought in the West, we discover a girl whose father and brothers are worried as much about her becoming an old maid as they are about their dying cattle. For the truth is, she is indeed a plain girl. They try every possible scheme to marry her off, but without success. Nor is there any sign of relief from the drought. Suddenly, from out of nowhere appears a character with a mellifluous tongue and the most grandiose notions a man could imagine. He is a rainmaker, and he promises to bring rain for $100. It's a whacky idea, but the rainmaker is so refreshing that the family finally consent, and forthwith they begin banging on drums to rattle the sky; the rainmaker turns his own magic on the girl, and persuades her that she has a very real beauty of her own.

FIFTH GRADE DAY

Eight twenty-five
Time to start.
Don't go in,
He's not here yet.
Stop hitting me!
Jenny, did you do your math?
Not yet, I'm trying to do it now.
Here comes Mr. Kramer
Good morning, class!

Where's Katie—late again?
Chrissy Meyer, must you shriek?
Yes, my vocal cords need exercise.
So does your hand.
Write fifty times
I will not shriek in class.

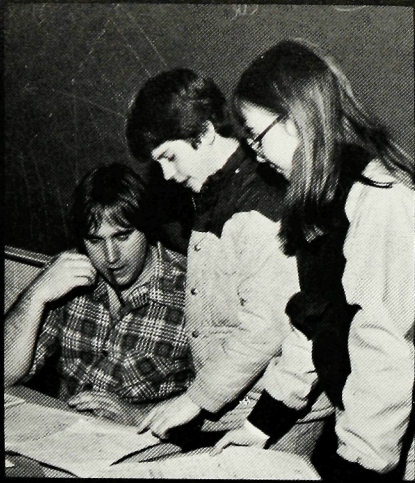

The hands of the clock
Make the rounds,
The sun journeys across the room.
Spelling changes to reading
to English to math.
Mr. Kramer, please tell "Sam and Sandy."

The lunch line summons the troops.
Did Shroeds bring his lunch?
Can I sit with you?
Who's got the napkins?
Courtney, if you laugh anymore you'll choke.

Science now—who's got the words?
Art and music—which group am I in?
Here comes Amy; you're late for gym.
Homework books out.
When's that test?
What's it on?

The buses are ready!
Hurry, we're late!
Call me, Katie, when you get home.
No, my mom won't let me.
See everyone tomorrow.
Bye, Mr. Kramer.

STACY ACKERMAN

I make you laugh and you make me cry, I believe its time for me to fly.

—REO Speedwagon

Indeed we are but walking shadows—We are not endowed with real life, and all that seems most real about us is but the thinnest substance of a dream—till the heart is touched. That touch creates us—then we begin to be.

—Nathaniel Hawthorne

Today—
To live
To laugh
To play to grow

Our winged feet see not reality
They live in dreams
And dance on clouds
They ride on unicorns
through rainbows
Never to awaken
Never to land.

Tomorrow—
To hope
To dream
To change to grow.

If you can imagine it,
you can achieve it.
If you can dream it,
you can become it.
—William Arthur Ward

SENIOR PROPHECY

Concocted by: Dana B. Burnell

An extraordinary experience occurred yesterday. As I was casually inspecting the bolts on the windows of a large house at 2:00 am, I glanced inside and saw an old man looking over a large green book which was titled "29 Flavors: The Incredible Shrinking Class of '82". I knocked on the window with my gun and the gentleman kindly showed me the book. I was so amazed at the exploits of these people that it was twenty minutes before I realized that the silver was sterling. I borrowed the book, too. This is what I found . . . . .

June, 1997

Paris, France: ROBERT KLEIMAN announced today that his new mesh button-down shirts will be on the market soon. This fashion breakthrough will enable chest hairs to be exposed without the necessity of unbuttoning the shirt to the navel.

New York, NY: LISA MARKOFF has baffled the scientific world by announcing that she has decided not to turn thirty this summer. Said Markoff, "I like 29, and see no urgent reason to, like, change."

New York, NY: LISA ADAMS, the renowned stage actress, interrupted her famous performance as Lady Macbeth by suddenly shouting "SCRUFF!!" and running down the aisle and attacking SANFORD SPERO. It was fifteen minutes before police could get Adams to stop kissing Spero.

Los Angeles, Ca. LISA JONES has just had her new line of pink hippopotomas purses written up in Vogue magazine. Said the popular designer, "I believe these purses will, like, become as characteristic to, like, the female population as, like, Calvins, and they go very well with Kelly green.

London, England: Ex-Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and DAVID LAZARO announced their marriage at a press conference today. Thatcher spoke of their undying love, and of the rare beauty of their relationship. Lazaro maintained a rather sullen silence until the end when he asked twice about the pay retired Prime Ministers receive and three times about the sum for which Thatcher's life is insured.

Running Springs, Wy.: STEPHANIE BECKER-BERKE announced that she had never been German; she simply found it easier to buy liquor when using a foreign accent.

Winnetka, Il.: Last week, all of the members of the New Trier Township banded together and voted GRACE WOOD the most organized person in that township. She will go on to the state tournament, where, if she wins, she will qualify for the national and perhaps, the international finals. Good luck, Miss Wood.

Munich, Germany: DAVID CHASSIN, as a gesture towards international peace, surrendered his rubber chicken to the leaders of the Peace Conference. Chassin's eyes were misty, and he requested a few minutes alone with the chicken, but this monumental feat was achieved at last.

Dallas, Texas: JULIA VEST, head cheerleader of the Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders, was asked how she kept her place and her figure despite being fifteen years older than all the others. Vest smiled, and said that fifty football players serve as a great incentive.

New York, NY: The famous opera star, LAURIE OSBERG, has announced an early retirement. She says that she is "just sick and tired of singing words that do not make any sense." Osberg added that her gibberish offended her sense of order.

Gopher's Point, Mo.: The winner of the Infamous Sexual Innuendos Contest last week was ALLEN RICKEL. Rickel slaughtered his opponents by transforming the words "Out, damned spot!" into the most offensive in the English language.

Winnetka, Ill: Rumour has it that JENNIFER STONE refused to live with rock star David Bowie because she had discovered that he had never heard of Ralph Lauren. Said Stone, "True-love is one thing, but Polo is everything.

WASHINGTON, D.C.: ROBERT VIEREGG, the famous defense attorney had lost his last job. Vieregg reportedly arrived at court roaring drunk, and asked the judge if he wore the black robe to hide embarrassing perspiration stains. Vieregg was thrown out of court. (By the way, Vieregg's question was never answered.)

Hollywood, Ca.: JOHN WHITLOCK, the newest male star, has declared that he is tired of being just another beautiful body . . . that he has a mind. His agent pointed out that if Whitlock did have a mind, he wouldn't be in Hollywood. Whitlock annihilated the agent with a searing "Oh, yeah???"

New Haven, Ma: Harvard professor JAY GOLDFARB's book, 1001 Ways to Maim, Hurt, and Basically Cause a ----load of Destruction has not been selling well. Goldfarb has added illustrations in order to give the book appeal to children. He expects sales to pick up around Christmas.

Porth Cawl, Ireland: Authoress DANA BURNELL has announced that, in addition to not believing in taxes, she does not believe in the fact that there are small dogs, polyester suits, two sexes, seven of the ten commandments, rodents, twinkies, blue eye shadow, magazines without Brooke Shields on the cover, and people insane enough to volunteer to write senior prophecies.

Boston, Ma.: ALLYSON BARR, the winner of the Boston Marathon this year was asked how she psyched herself up for such a grueling run. Barr said that she pretended that she was trying to avoid being caught off campus illegally.

Moscow, Russia: STACY ACKERMAN, of Russia's famous dancing troupe, received rave reviews of her original dance "Julie Miller Does Tap". This seemingly frenzied dance evolved one day when Ackerman drank 74 cups of coffee and then went on stage.

Hollywood, Ca.: JENNY ATKINS, the famous film star, reportedly vandalized the entire studio of MGM yesterday. While standing in the rubble, Atkins excused her actions with a comment about artistic license.

A deserted island in the Pacific: ANDY BRESLER sent word today that he was becoming a recluse for at least three years. This way, the note said, he can talk to someone sensible for a change.

Chicago, Il: In her first interview since her marriage to the 90-year old millionaire, Hugh Hefner, MARY ANN FITZGERALD-Hefner said that she loved Hef's initiative, courage, and forcefulness. The interview was conducted from the club's kitchen where Fitzgerald-Hefner was feeding her husband some Gerber diced carrots and wiping his forceful chin.

New York, New York: LAUREN HANDELMAN was fired yesterday from her job playing flute for the New York Orchestra when she incited a riot between the strings and the percussion section.

Philadelphia, Pa.: ELIZABETH INGRAM was accosted yesterday by Ann and Abigail Landers. The two ex-columnists said that it was a dirty trick Ingram, who is not the only advice columnist in the country, played when she promised a big kiss to anybody with a problem, and some chicken soup to anybody who had a big problem.

Paris, France: CHRIS KOPECK created the biggest sensation of the century when she announced that John Lennon had not been shot; he had just gotten sick of Yoko and was scared to tell her. Kopeck and Lennon have been living together secretly since 1980.
